Man charged in stabbings

ATTACK A 20-year-old Ottawa man now faces a slew of charges after a man and woman in their 40s were stabbed in their west-end home over the weekend.

Police said yesterday they charged a man with two counts each of attempted murder, aggravated assault, forcible confinement, and uttering death threats in addition to other charges following the "isolated" incident in which the victims and suspect were not known to each other.

On Saturday morning, a man and woman were stabbed at a home in the 1200 block of Rideout Cres. The woman is in critical but stable condition in hospital, while the man is in stable condition.

Following a brief car chase, a man ditched his car and fled into the bush. The suspect was arrested after being tracked down by the K-9 unit.

Richard Keith Blake next appears in court Friday.

A peaceful protest descended into chaos after plain clothes officers pulled up in a van in front of the protesters and raced into the crowd to grab several suspects in front of the temporary detention centre yesterday in Toronto. Others in the crowd were also taken away moments later. More than 600 people were arrested over the weekend.

Police crack down on protesters after day of mayhem

G20 Summit

Police cracked down hard on G20 dissent yesterday in the wake of violent protests that saw downtown Toronto transformed into part police state, part riot zone over the weekend.

Scenes of unopposed militants using so-called Black Bloc tactics to wreak havoc along trendy Queen Street West on Saturday were replaced yesterday by swift and aggressive police tactics to shut down protests.

After a day of carnage that gripped the city and resulted in more than 600 arrests, police were left with little choice but to switch gears, said one expert.

Change in tactics

• A security expert based in Ottawa said the immediate action and arrests yesterday represent a deliberate change in tactics.

"They gave a chance to people to calm down (on Saturday) — it didn't work, so the strategy totally changed," said Michel Juneau-Katsuya.

"It's also a way to send a message to the demonstrators and telling them, 'Hey, enough is enough. We are not going to tolerate this. That's why we're ramping it up.'"

Police may have initially hung back on Saturday because they wanted to avoid coming across more heavy-handed than they already appeared to have been, said Juneau-Katsuya, who added they could no longer do that as a result of what happened.

A seemingly peaceful protest yesterday outside a film studio being used as detention centre for G20 protesters was quickly put down by a flood of riot police.

A bike rally across town was similarly set upon by police.

As hot spots flared across the city, riot police moved in, again surrounding protesters.

The swift action yesterday was in stark contrast to Saturday, when riot police simply watched as anarchists burned their cruisers.

The massive police force assembled for the twin summits will remain in the city today and will be at the ready, an Integrated Security Unit spokesperson said.

Council to vote on whether to decide on Lansdowne

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

POLITICS After months of debate, the future of Lansdowne Park will finally be settled when city council votes on the proposal today.

Or it could go on for several more months.

One of the first things city council will have to vote on during a special meeting on the Lansdowne Park Partnership plan is whether to leave the final decision on the park up to the next city council.

"The final decision really should be made by the new council." Coun. Clive Doucet

According to a city staff report on the implementation and planning stages for the park, a comprehensive Master Site Plan could be brought forward for consideration by council as late as Nov. 24. That would be one month after the new council is elected, but one week before they take office.

This prompted calls from several councillors to delay a vote until next year.

"The final decision really should be made by the new council," said Capital Ward Coun. Clive Doucet.

Bay Coun. Alex Cullen and Beacon Hill-Cyrville Coun. Michel Bellemare have a motion that would see the vote be put off until January 2011.

Leak leads to mint evacuation

Stuck liquid oxygen valve raised fears of possible explosion

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

A tanker truck spewing liquid oxygen from a jammed valve forced firefighters to evacuate the Royal Canadian Mint and close down Sussex Drive for several hours yesterday.

Firefighters were called to deal with the leak around 11:40 a.m.

The truck was unloading liquid oxygen in a driveway south of the mint when the valve got stuck open.

While there was no threat of poison from the fumes from the liquid oxygen, which the mint uses in the silver refining process, Ottawa district fire Chief Michael MacCormac said they were concerned about the risk of explosion.

"We don't want to do anything to the vehicle to create any hazards," he said.

MacCormac said there was concern that the leak could freeze the tires, causing them to explode and throw metal shards off the rims.

The fire department evacuated the mint and the former war museum next door.

People in sections of the National Gallery of Canada were advised to turn off their air conditioning units and stay away from their windows.

The truck was carrying up to 25,000 litres of liquid oxygen, said McCormac. The delivery to the mint was the first of the day.

The company did a slow bleed of the tanker until it was emptied of liquid oxygen.

The car, which features 500-plus horsepower, allows McColm to drive at speeds of up to 170 miles an hour. McColm has 13 races across the country between June and September.

"Everyday, I'm living the dream," said McColm, who recently graduated from Ryerson University with a degree in civil engineering. "Not many people get to say that they're a NASCAR driver."

Protests, politics make world's headlines

G20 Summit

Violent protests competed with weighty issues like the global economy in the Sunday headlines of the international media covering the G20 summit.

Media outlets from many countries ran prominent stories about the roving group of masked protesters who splintered from a larger, peaceful protest Saturday to smash windows and set several police cruisers on fire. On Sunday, the situation remained tense with police taking no chances.

While the world's leaders continued their talks ensconced behind two high security fences, international media were tasked with juggling protests with politics as they turned their lenses on the city's usually peaceful streets.

"Violence, vandalism rock G-20 protests," declared a CNN headline. "Black Bloc tactics mar Canada's G-20 summit," said another.

Police power justified, says safety minister

G20 Summit

Praising police for their grace under pressure, Ontario's solicitor general says the weekend violence by "thugs" protesting the G20 summit proves extraordinary measures were justified.

Community Safety Minister Rick Bartolucci, whose government effectively gave police the power to arrest anyone refusing to show identification or be searched within five metres of the downtown G20 security zone, said the rioting demonstrated the gravity of the situation.

Rick Bartolucci

"Will there be armchair quarterbacks? There's going to be armchair quarterbacks," Bartolucci said.

The minister said there's no question the province did the right thing in granting Toronto police Chief Bill Blair's request that he be given temporary expanded authority under the Second World War-era Public Works Protection Act. "It's not about vindication here ... that debate is over," said Bartolucci. "Police should have the powers that were granted to them under the Public Works Protection Act."

The regulatory amendment was approved June 2 through an order-in-council by the cabinet — with no debate in the legislature — and was quietly posted June 16 on the government's e-laws website. "Would you or any law-abiding citizen want to see things like we saw to be taking place in that (security) zone?"

Bartolucci said the police "performed well under difficult circumstances" and he blasted the balaclava-clad vandals who smashed shop windows, burned police cars and ran amok on city streets.

"They are thugs. They've (undermined) the right of peaceful, democratic protest. Somehow, we allow these thugs to hijack the agenda. It's mind-boggling," he said.

"It's very stressful for the law-abiding citizens, it's very stressful for the police officers."

The province's top lawman also fired back against political rivals, media pundits and civil libertarians, who have derided the Liberals for the perceived heavy-handedness in granting the increased police powers.

"It's been clearly advertised in the newspaper," he said, referring to a G20 summit ad that had been running since last Monday.

The ad, which does not specifically mention the controversial regulatory amendment, warns that "those who need to access the security perimeter ... will be required to show identification and have a purpose for entering."

"We do aim to make the G20 a more credible and legitimate organization as we move forward," said a spokesperson for the Seoul organizing committee.

Oil spill dodges storm?

A tropical depression slamming into parts of Mexico isn't taking aim at the massive Gulf oil spill — for now — though any system can quickly change course and send cleanup efforts grinding to a halt.

The logistics of containing the oil spewing into the Gulf of Mexico are mind-boggling even in ideal conditions. Things become even more complicated with the approach of a storm system like Alex, which has pelted Belize, northern Guatemala and Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula with heavy rain.

Any system with winds over 74 km/h could force BP PLC to abandon efforts to contain the flow for up to two weeks and delay the drilling of two relief wells that are the best hope of stopping it, Coast Guard Adm. Thad Allen said Saturday, shortly after Alex became the first tropical storm of the Atlantic hurricane season. It has since weakened to a tropical depression.

However, forecasters say Alex will cross over the Yucatan Peninsula back into the Gulf, where the warm waters could fuel it up to hurricane strength.

It's projected to hit Mexico again south of Texas and miss the spill site, but officials are watching closely.

Nearly 39,000 people and more than 6,000 boats are working on the cleanup.

Pope speaks out on 'deplorable' raids

Belgian police investigating abuse cases

Pope Benedict XVI lashed out yesterday at what he called the "deplorable" raids carried out by Belgian police who detained bishops, confiscated computers, opened a crypt and took church documents as part of an investigation into priestly sex abuse.

Benedict made a rare personal entry into the escalating diplomatic dispute with Belgium, issuing a message of solidarity to the head of the Belgian bishops' conference and other bishops who were detained in the June 24 raid.

Pope Benedict

He said justice must take its course, but also asserted the right of the Catholic Church to investigate clerical abuse alongside civil law enforcement authorities.

It was first time the pope himself had commented on the raids, and his message to Monsignor Andre Joseph Leonard capped a daily ratcheting up of the Vatican's criticism. On Saturday, the No. 2 Vatican official said the raids were unprecedented even under communism.

Belgium's justice minister defended the searches yesterday, saying the bishops were treated normally and that the search warrant was fully legitimate.

In the raids, police searched the home and former office of former Archbishop Godfried Danneels, taking documents and his personal computer, just as the country's nine bishops were starting their monthly meeting.

The men were held for nine hours and — along with diocese staff — had to surrender their cellphones.

In addition, police opened at least one tomb of a prelate — a violation that has particularly galled the Vatican. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crisis in Belgium's Catholic Church

- The revelation came as hundreds of cases of abuse were being reported across Europe, Latin America and elsewhere, exposing coverups by bishops and evidence of long-standing Vatican inaction to stop it.

Lot of wishful thinking

It's encouraging to see the expansion and improvement of public transit figuring prominently in plans for Ottawa's future. As growth threatens downtown gridlock and we battle to clamp down on carbon emissions, we're going to need every edge we can get.

While there are still some jitters over the likely cost of the LRT line, most of the requisite money and political will have been assembled, and discussion of another light rail or rapid bus loop linking Ottawa and Gatineau promises some relief from our chronic and worsening cross-border commuter crunch.

And then there's that other major civic project, the redevelopment of Lansdowne Park, where a complex private-public partnership continues to reliably provide surprises.

Just last week, a clause was suddenly discovered in the agreement that would have effectively handed the proponents, Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group, a 30-year monopoly on all new stadiums and arenas in the city.

This shocking sweetener, once spotted by Coun. Christine Leadman, was hastily dumped on Friday, but it raised serious questions as to how closely councillors, who may vote on the deal as early as today, have even read the damned thing.

What hasn't changed throughout the process is the problematic outlook for traffic and transit in the area around Lansdowne. The park is nowhere near the Transitway, and well out of reach of all the planned improvements to the system further north.

Buses squeeze up an already congested Bank Street, which grinds slowly during rush hours and 67s games as it is. Add 340,000 square feet of retail and commercial space, condos and a venue, which may host events for crowds of up to 40,000, and it's evident that sending a few more No. 1 and No. 7 buses up and down Bank is just not going to cut it.

Last week, during public delegations on the Lansdowne project, Shawn Menard, vice-chair of the city's pedestrian and transit advisory committee, warned council that the city's traffic projections for the area, and proposed mitigation strategies, including offsite parking, shuttle buses and designated transit lanes, may contain dangerous amounts of wishful thinking.

"The question that should be addressed by councillors is not will this cram in using optimistic numbers, but rather is this the best or even a good solution for our city transportation-wise," Menard told council last week.

"Looking at the numbers, the answer is clearly no."

Is this what democracy really looks like?

Peter McCartney

"This is what democracy looks like," chanted peaceful protesters, including myself, advocating a plethora of social issues on our march from Queen's Park to Queen and Spadina streets in Toronto during Saturday's start of the G20 meetings.

Sure enough, the so-called Black Bloc soon materialized; a menacing homogenous group of militants with the intent of doing as much damage as possible to draw police away from the infamous "gate."

They split from the main group once we arrived at a standoff with police and unleashed well-orchestrated mayhem upon corporate Toronto.

Meanwhile, Helter Skelter accompanied the tension as the main group of protesters had a unit of police surrounded around a smashed police cruiser.

Although police remained stoic and calm throughout, you could see a defined fear in their faces, followed by relief when another four units trickled in as backup.

After finally forcing the protesters back down Queen Street, riot police backed off at Peter Street, and as the main protest backtracked towards the financial district we discovered the anarchists' work.

Nearly every Starbucks and bank we passed sported broken windows and spray-painted walls, with security staff watching us intensely from inside, like we were an exhibit at the zoo.

It's an eerie feeling peering into a destroyed Starbucks where mere hours before a smiling barista cheerfully handed you a coffee.

Police and protesters spent the next few hours in an intersection-by-intersection power struggle to the sound of taunting chants and the authoritative strike of batons on shields in unison.

All while the Black Bloc tore through Yonge Street, smashing nearly every corporate business as store owners watched in horror.

And when they were finished, a simple wardrobe change let them rejoin the crowd undetected, while Torontonians were left to pick up the pieces, wondering if this really was what democracy is supposed to look like.

Peter McCartney, a native Calgarian, is an intern with Metro Calgary and is heading into his second year at Carleton University's journalism program.

Beauty, or ugliness, is in the eye of the beholder

A chihuahua's oddly curved back and legs and closed-up left eye earned the four-year-old rescue dog top honours at the World's Ugliest Dog contest at a Northern California fair Friday.

Sporting a grey, brown and black coat, Princess Abby Francis beat a rough-looking slate of candidates for the prize, including Pabst, a teeth-bearing boxer mix who won last year.

Princess Abby shivered in the cool breeze after her win while nestled in the arms of her owner, Kathleen Francis, who received a $1,000 cheque at the 22nd annual contest held at the Sonoma-Marin Fair in Petaluma.

The victory was a surprise to Francis.

"I don't think she's ugly at all," she said. "I think she's the most beautiful dog."

Francis says she adopted Princess Abby from her veterinarian about five months ago. This was the dog's first such contest since she was found running through the street.

Celebrity vet Karen (Doc) Halligan said the chihuahua's problematic back, legs and eye may be due to being inbred.

"She's a poster child to spay and neuter your pets," she said.

TRAVEL Air Canada expects to bring groups of Chinese tourists to Canada for leisure travel as the carrier doubles capacity to serve routes between Toronto and China this fall.

The airline said Friday that China's designation of Canada as an approved travel destination — opening the door to expanded air travel between the two countries — comes after many years of negotiations.

"This opens up a whole new market that we never had before," said Duncan Dee, CEO at Air Canada.

CRA employees online too much: Reports

Some Canada Revenue Agency workers have been spending far too much time browsing the Internet and sending offensive emails — and not enough time collecting taxes.

Internal reports show an average of 85 employees a year are disciplined for wasting their work days surfing the web, setting up sports pools, sending chain letters, promoting "illegal substances," sharing offensive cartoons and running pyramid schemes.

"(One) employee browsed the Internet an average of three hours and 32 minutes per day," says one report from last July, or about half the shift. Managers at the Canada Revenue Agency were lenient in their undisclosed discipline of the employee because of his "good performance" — though it was a second offence. A year earlier, the same worker had been caught browsing the Internet an average of two hours and 25 minutes each day.

Outside interests

- News reports have previously cited instances in which CRA workers allegedly leaked confidential information on the private tax affairs of former sports celebrities such as Liberal MP Ken Dryden.

Another employee — found to be web-surfing an average of 83 minutes a day — was also given lenient treatment in view of his "remorsefulness."

These and other records on forbidden cyber-behaviour at the Canada Revenue Agency were obtained by The Canadian Press under the Access to Information Act.

An uncertain future

Sustainability study shows quality of life at risk

for Metro Canada

Canadians living in big cities enjoy a high quality of life, but a new report suggests that may change if key sustainability issues are not quickly and effectively addressed.

The Sustainable Cities Challenge in Canada — conducted by GlobeScan and commissioned by Siemens Canada and the David Suzuki Foundation — polled experts across the nation on what the problems are, and how they should be rectified.

Here are some of the key findings:

TRANSPORTATION

What's the problem?

The report says decision making is fragmented, and projects can be deferred — or even dropped — during election years.

What's the solution?

"We see that there are bigger cities lacking good rail-based solutions, for example, between airports and city centres," says Roland Aurich, president and CEO of Siemans Canada Ltd.

"We have a long debate in Canada about high-speed rail. There is not yet a decision in that area, and we also see a lot of discussion about whether you should rely on bus lines or install light-rail traffic solutions. Again, the decision power is not in place. We do understand that these decisions need to be carefully based, but we also need to create a process where we do now take decisions needed for the future."

Water infrastructure is crumbling and needs desperate repair.

The survey says...

- Experts in Ontario see water as the most important sustainability issues facing Canadian cities. Particular concern was expressed over the age of the province's water mains. Housing topped poverty and immigration as the key social concern. The ongoing availability of jobs emerged as the major economic issue across Ontario. The province's biggest infrastructure concern is funding, due to significant budget deficits.

WATER QUALITY

What's the problem?

Infrastructure is old and crumbling, a problem that will only worsen if comprehensive rebuilding and expansion not undertaken.

What's the solution?

"First of all, we need to make sure we invest in our aging infrastructure," Aurich notes.

"In some cases, we see that the clear water which is produced doesn't come to the consumer. A portion gets lost in leakage. The second issue is to make sure that we also maintain and create capacity and quality — in a demanding way, and in an efficient way."

URBAN SPRAWL

What's the problem?

Cities expand to cover huge amounts of new land, but land-use and infrastructure concerns are not always properly addressed.

What's the solution?

"Our theory — and we see this happening more and more in practice — is that you have an environmental view of sustainable solutions, you install transportation systems, you have a good social security system in the city, people enjoy that life," says Aurich.

"That brings effectiveness to the area, avoiding the negative effects of sprawl, and better defining where new lands should be allocated."

Brazil and Chile well acquainted

ROUND OF 16 PREVIEW

Brazil vs. Chile

Brazil and Chile won't have a lot of surprises when they play in the second round of the World Cup today.

The two South American countries have met dozens of times in recent years and already know what to expect from each other at Ellis Park Stadium.

Brazil has dominated the rivalry and arrives heavily favoured to advance, but this time the five-time champions will be facing a Chile team eager to show it can get past the round of 16 for the first time since its home tournament in 1962.

"We will have to play with intelligence," Brazil midfielder Gilberto Silva said yesterday. "We can't go after the win at all costs. We will need to be careful with their counterattacking, they know how to play and will try to attack too."

The Brazilians know better not to take their opponents for granted.

"Now we get to the stage where the 90 minutes will be decisive, mistakes are not allowed or you will be going home," Brazil coach Dunga said. "Chile has been improving, it has a team with good players and will fight very hard to keep advancing."

Brazil hasn't lost to Chile in 10 years, since a 3-0 result in a 2000 qualifier for the 2002 World Cup. It has won the past seven, outscoring Chile 26-3.

Outrage after goal not counted in loss to Germany

ROUND OF 16 RESULT

Germany 4 England 1

Germany's latest World Cup victory over England will be remembered not for any of the brilliant goals, but for the one that didn't count.

Ask anyone — players, coaches, thousands of fans in the stadium and millions more watching on television — and there's little question that Frank Lampard put a shot in the net late in the first half that would have tied the score.

But referee Jorge Larrionda waved play on, and Germany used two second-half goals by Thomas Mueller for a 4-1 victory yesterday. The Germans are headed to the quarterfinals.

The English are shaking their heads in disbelief.

"It's incredible," England coach Fabio Capello said. "We played with five referees and they can't decide if it's a goal or no goal. The game was different after this goal. It was the mistake of the linesman and I think the referee because from the bench I saw the ball go (in)."

Germany coach Joachim Loew couldn't argue that point.

"What I saw on the television, this ball was behind the line," Loew said. "It must have been given as goal."

It wasn't.

"The goal was very important," Capello said. "We could have played a different style.

"We made some mistakes when they played the counterattack. The referee made bigger mistakes."

Argentina advances, with help from ref

ROUND OF 16 RESULT

Argentina 3 Mexico 1

Carlos Tevez scored two goals and Gonzalo Higuain added another yesterday to give Argentina a 3-1 win over Mexico and a spot in the World Cup quarter-finals.

For the second consecutive match, though, there was controversy over a refereeing blunder.

Tevez was clearly offside when he headed in a chipped pass from Lionel Messi in the 26th minute at Soccer City. The referee awarded the goal after a lengthy consultation with his linesman.

Argentina will now face Germany in a rematch of the 1986 and 1990 World Cup finals.

Nadal's knee 'so much better': Coach

Rafael Nadal's bothersome right knee held up fine during a 40-minute practice at the All England Club yesterday.

Walking briskly while carrying his racket bag after his light workout, Nadal told The Associated Press that his knee felt "good, good; not bad."

Toni Nadal, Rafael's uncle and coach, was more expansive, saying, "The knee is so much better" than it was Saturday, when the 2008 Wimbledon champion received treatment from a trainer during changeovers while coming back to beat No. 33-seeded Philipp Petzschner of Germany 6-4, 4-6, 6-7 (5), 6-2, 6-3 in the third round.

That was Nadal's second consecutive five-set victory, the first time he's ever had two matches go the distance this early at a major tournament.

The Spaniard went out to hit early yesterday afternoon during a star-studded training session. Roger Federer was perhaps six metres away on the court to Nadal's right, and Andy Roddick was to Nadal's left, while Novak Djokovic and Robin Soderling played a tiebreaker for fun nearby.

After yesterday's day off, Wimbledon resumes today with all 16 men's and women's fourth-round matches. The No. 2-seeded Nadal faces 66th-ranked Paul-Henri Mathieu of France.

"I hope and think he can play with no problem," Toni Nadal said. "We are nervous about the opponent, but not the knee at the moment."

His nephew's knees have been a long-standing issue.

Rafael Nadal skipped the grass-court Grand Slam tournament last year because of tendinitis in both knees, becoming only the fifth player in the history of an event first contested in 1877 to not defend his championship because of an injury.

He stopped playing during his Australian Open quarter-final against Andy Murray in January because of trouble with the right knee.

And Nadal acknowledged Saturday he's been dealing with knee issues this spring.

Watson emerges from playoff as Travelers champ

PGA Bubba Watson really wanted to play well at the Travelers Championship to impress U.S. Ryder Cup captain Corey Pavin.

He did.

Watson overcame a six-stroke deficit yesterday to force a playoff with Pavin and Scott Verplank, then beat Verplank with a par on the second playoff hole.

Bubba Watson

Watson, the long-hitting left-hander from the Florida Panhandle, closed with a 4-under 66 to match Verplank (64) and Pavin (66) at 14 under. Pavin dropped out on the first extra hole.

After making a three-footer on the par-3 16th to win, Watson hugged wife Angie and began crying. He said he was so nervous he could not feel his arms on the final putt.

"I'm a very emotional guy," he said. "I cry all the time. When I go to church on Sunday, I cry at church. I couldn't get the 'Yes' out of 'I do' at my wedding. The pastor said, 'You got to say it. You can't just nod. You can't nod.'

"Everybody has issues. My family had some issues. My dad is battling cancer. My wife last year thought she had a tumour in her brain. We got lucky with that one, and now, we're battling with my dad. It's emotional."

It was the largest comeback on the tour since Padraig Harrington also came from six back to win the 2007 British Open.

Verplank left his tee shot short and left of the green on the second playoff hole and missed an eight-foot par putt. Watson, who had a 48-footer for birdie, was able to steady his nerves enough to get it close.

Graham DeLaet of Weyburn, Sask., wound up at even par for the tournament in a tie for 68th.

Learning doesn't stop just because school's out

EDUCATION It's summertime, and as the saying goes, the living's easy. But, according to Dr. Nick Whitehead, founder and CEO of Oxford Learning, the living might be too easy — especially where students' brains are concerned.

"While it's important for students to take a break and enjoy their summer, it's more important that students continue to keep their brains challenged all summer long," he says. "The brain continues to see connections, grow, and process information even during the summer."

The brain functions much like muscles in the body: When not used properly, it begins to deteriorate.

"Without continual exercise over the summer, students' brains can lose learning momentum, which can lead to trouble in the fall," says Dr. Whitehead.

"The summer should give kids a breather, not cause them to become mentally passive."

Five tips for all the job hunters

If the word "networking" makes you want to curl into a ball, Diane Darling, author of The Networking Survival Guide — now in its second edition — says it doesn't need to be that way. Here are some tips everyone can implement immediately:

When you're looking for a job or aiming for a promotion, be aware that your profiles on social-networking sites will be perused.

Start from a position of strength

Too often people go out and try to randomly meet a bunch of new people. This is exhausting for many (especially for introverts) and often unproductive. Begin with your fan club. Who has helped you before, and vice versa?

Practice "hybrid networking"

It's most effective when you combine social networking and traditional networking (attending events, having a coffee, etc.). Like a hybrid car, there isn't a moment when the engine shuts off and restarts. If you don't like events, serve on a board and meet people that way. Networking is not a "one size fits all."

You never know

The "kid" in jeans may be a millionaire, and the person in the business suit may be broke. It's unlikely your first impression of someone is always right. Be open-minded.

> "Social-networking sites are researched before promotions are given or vendors are hired."

What goes online, stays online

This can be good or bad. If you're frustrated, don't say it online unless you're willing to have your grandmother or your kids read what you write.

Social-networking sites are researched before promotions are given or vendors are hired.

Be wise and be happy

Follow up

Most of your networking time and energy should be focused on following up with people. Even if they aren't spending money with you, they may be great referral sources or ambassadors.

Fans remember King of Pop

Michael Jackson fans the world over paused to remember the man they called the King of Pop with songs, dances and prayers on the first anniversary of his death, a day Jackson's father marked by filing a wrongful-death lawsuit against the doctor charged with giving his son a lethal dose of sedatives.

In Japan, hundreds of people lighted candles in Jackson's memory. In the Los Angeles suburb of Glendale, thousands filed silently through the gates of Forest Lawn Cemetery, where Jackson's body is entombed in the mausoleum. Some of them released white doves while others wept softly.

"He's been my idol all my life since I can remember. I feel like I haven't had closure," said Erick Dominguez, who travelled more than 100 kilometres to pay respects. As he spoke, the 37-year-old sales representative, his eyes hidden by sunglasses, began to weep.

Fans of the late pop star Michael Jackson pose with his star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame in Los Angeles over the weekend.

Several of Jackson's relatives visited the mausoleum, which was off limits to the public. Brother Tito shook hands with fans as he arrived, and brother Jermaine rolled down a window and waved as the family left in a fleet of luxury vehicles.

In Jackson's hometown of Gary, Ind., Jackson's mother, Katherine, unveiled a monument in the front yard of the modest home where her children grew up.

"This past year has been very hard on the family," she said. "If it wasn't for the help of all of you, we wouldn't have made it through."

Jackson died June 25, 2009, at age 50, just before he was to begin a comeback tour. Dr. Conrad Murray has pleaded not guilty to felony involuntary manslaughter in his death. Authorities say Murray provided the entertainer with a mix of sedatives — including the powerful anesthetic propofol — that killed him.

As Jackson fans everywhere grieved, the entertainer's father, Joe Jackson, filed suit against Murray in federal court in Los Angeles.

The complaint, which seeks more than $75,000, accuses Murray of professional negligence and contends the physician tried to conceal his administration of propofol after Jackson's death. Propofol is normally administered only in hospital settings.

Murray had been providing it to help him sleep after the physically grueling rehearsals for his comeback.

Murray attorney Charles Peckham said in a statement he expected his client's innocence to be "proven in a court of law."

Jackson's father is also fighting with his son's estate, seeking more than $15,000 a month. As Jackson's father went to court in Los Angeles, tributes to his son unfolded around the world.

One of the more raucous ones took place at Jackson's star in front of Grauman's Chinese Theatre on the Hollywood Walk of Fame. Fans blasted his music and danced energetically to the delight of tourists and passers-by on the crowded sidewalk. Many of the dancers were dressed as the King of Pop himself, wearing sequined gloves, black shirts and pants, white sox, black loafers and snappy looking Fedoras.

Farrah foundation keeps cancer battle alive

PEOPLE Farrah Fawcett's closest friends marked the first anniversary of her death by dedicating a cancer-research foundation in her name.

Alana Stewart, Ryan O'Neal, Tatum O'Neal and Redmond O'Neal were among guests at an intimate gathering Friday at the new offices of the Farrah Fawcett Foundation, which funds alternative cancer research and treatment methods and aims to improve the quality of life of those with the disease.

Fawcett, the Charlie's Angels star who detailed her battle with anal cancer in the 2009 documentary, Farrah's Story, died at 62 on June 25, 2009.

Stewart said Fawcett started her namesake foundation during her own struggle with cancer, and Stewart was determined to keep her friend's efforts alive.

"If I can help carry on Farrah's mission for the foundation, it's an honour for me," Stewart said. "I feel almost like she's a guardian angel watching over me, and I feel like she's smiling down on us and very happy that she died for a cause."

"She felt that she could help a lot of people and she could give a lot of people inspiration, courage and hope," Stewart continued. "That's why she did the documentary and that's why she started the foundation."

Ryan O'Neal said the first anniversary of Fawcett's death had been an emotional one for his family. Their 25-year-old son, Redmond, who has been dogged by drug problems and was jailed during his mother's final days, visited Fawcett's grave for the first time Friday.

Hundreds of fans camp out for Eclipse premiere

Monica Siegel and her two friends dropped a total of $2,500 and flew hundreds of kilometres to camp out for four days on a gritty patch of sidewalk in downtown Los Angeles. On Thursday, it was all worth it.

Siegel, 22, nabbed a spot near the red carpet to see — and swoon over — the heartthrob stars of The Twilight Saga: Eclipse as they arrived at the premiere of the latest instalment in the blockbuster vampire series.

"It's been a big part of my life. I start caring about the characters a lot, and when they make the movies, you start caring about the actors that portray the characters," she said after frantically colouring a fan poster. "The love story is what drew me in."

MATT SAYLES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Siegel, a college sophomore, spent more than $1,000 on airfare, camping equipment and a motel to make it to California with her two friends, whom she met through a Twilight Facebook page. The motel, at $60 a night, was for showers only: Siegel and her pals have been sleeping and living in their brand-new tent since Sunday.

"I've never gone camping in my life," Siegel said. "We're paying for a hotel room we can't sleep in — but we can shower!"

Siegel, 21-year-old Amanda Willis, and 25-year-old Melissa Moorhead are just three among thousands of so-called Twi-hards who have clogged the downtown premiere venue since early this week, camping out in a specially-designated tent city for a fleeting glimpse of stars such as Robert Pattinson, Kristin Stewart and Taylor Lautner.

Up to 9,000 people were issued wristbands for a chance to see the film. At least 550 early birds, like Siegel, were ensured a spot along the red carpet, which was black for the occasion. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When in Twilight zone, pick a side

ANALYSIS Athens vs. Sparta. Red Sox vs. Yankees. Jennifer Aniston vs. Angelina Jolie.

Since the dawn of time, fierce rivalries have inspired fierce devotion, and Edward vs. Jacob in the Twilight saga is the latest, most fervent example.

Although fans of Stephenie Meyer's staggeringly popular series of novels know how it all ends — whether tormented teenager Bella ends up with vampire Edward or werewolf Jacob — somehow they still root as hard as ever for their favourite.

That obviously remains true as the hotly anticipated third film based on the books, The Twilight Saga: Eclipse, arrives in theatres Wednesday. And most align themselves firmly one way or the other: There is no grey area here.

But what does it say about people if they wear a T-shirt emblazoned with "Team Edward" or "Team Jacob" underneath their Forks High School hoodies?

Jeremy Clyman, who writes about film in his "Reel Therapy" blog on the Psychology Today website, says just wanting to belong to a group is a fundamental human desire. Which side you choose in Twilight, though, could stem from personal factors beyond merely thinking Robert Pattinson as Edward is cuter than Taylor Lautner as Jacob — or vice versa.

One of the main things that's exciting about Edward, Clyman said, is that he has a secret: He's a vampire. And that might allow audience members with secrets of their own to identify with him. "The other appealing thing is the character strength that defines him, his self-control," Clyman explained.

Meanwhile, Clyman thinks of the more adventurous and muscular Jacob "as the underdog because when it comes to romantic affection for Bella, to competing for Bella, he's in the underdog slot the whole time," Clyman said. "She wants to spend time with Edward and Jacob's stuck in the friend zone."

Then there are people like Rosemary Brennan of Los Angeles, a writer for Glamour.com, who says: "More than anything, I'm Team Not Bella. She just seems so manipulative. I think because people are so tied to Edward or Jacob, their dislike of Bella is even stronger." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The winner is ...

- A Google search for "Team Edward" yields more than 33.4 million hits compared to 15.2 million for "Team Jacob." On Facebook, about 90,000 people "like" the Team Edward page versus about 52,000 for the Team Jacob page. And in an online poll at the Internet Movie Database (IMDb.com), Edward fans have been outnumbering Jacob fans by about a 2-to-1 ratio.

The originals strike back

Amidst slew of sequels, new ideas ready to make mark

It's summertime at the movies, the season of getting-to-know-you-all-over-again as audiences reacquaint themselves with old screen pals such as Woody and Buzz Lightyear, Iron Man, Shrek and that Karate Kid.

Yet new ideas occasionally pop up even in Hollywood, the place that thrives on sequels, remakes, spin-offs and adaptations based on best-selling novels, TV shows, comic books or toys.

Among this summer's handful of original stories are Tom Cruise's Knight and Day, Angelina Jolie's Salt and Leonardo DiCaprio's Inception, from The Dark Knight director Christopher Nolan.

With old standbys such as Sex and the City 2, Robin Hood and The A-Team falling short of box-office expectations, fresh concepts play a bigger role in determining the success of Hollywood's summer.

Inception in particular has the industry and fans captivated, coming from a filmmaker with a track record for blockbuster entertainment that's also bold and smart.

Angelina Jolie stars in Salt.

Starring DiCaprio as a man using technology to sneak into people's dreams and steal their ideas, Inception arrives in theatres July 17 with the best buzz for an original story since James Cameron's Avatar last December.

At $2.7 billion worldwide, Avatar leads the box-office charts, hurtling past Harry Potter, Spider-Man and other franchise adaptations. "I would like to say we were very encouraged by the success of Avatar," Nolan said with a big laugh.

For many fans, Avatar was as groundbreaking a movie experience as one of the prime cinema adventures of Nolan's boyhood, Star Wars.

"Ever since I saw that film, whether I knew it or not, my ambition has been to give the audience that kind of experience," Nolan continued. "To create a world that they hadn't expected before and hadn't seen before and let them lose themselves in it."

So why does Hollywood keep coming back to the same old things? Simple. It pays better.

Most of the movies that draw colossal audiences are based on something that existed before. Familiarity sometimes can breed contempt as audiences tire of characters, but it's generally easier to get fans to buy tickets for the latest in a continuing saga.

"It really is up to the audience and critics. A lot of people jump on Hollywood for that, but the truth is, if they'll come, we'll make them," said producer Lorenzo di Bonaventura, whose credits include Transformers flicks and Jolie's upcoming spy thriller Salt.

Sources say the action stems from a violent confrontation between the two in January, three months before they announced their split.

"She tried to protect his reputation, despite her fears of him and his verbal and physical abuse," a source says. "She regrets having believed in his empty promises to obtain professional help to control his violent nature." ## Jackson items auctioned

GLOVE FETCHES ALMOST TWO HUNDRED GRAND! Some fans of Michael Jackson celebrated the singer on the anniversary of his death by snatching up some of his personal property at a Las Vegas auction, including the Swarovski-crystal-studded glove Jackson wore on a 1984 tour, which fetched $190,000, according to the Las Vegas Sun.

Jackson

The winning bidder, Wanda Kelley of Los Angeles, was prepared to pay even more than that. "Let's just say I wasn't walking out of here without that glove," she says.

A pair of Jackson's stage-worn loafers that were listed as worth $2,000 to $3,000 went for $90,000.

The custom jacket that the pop singer was wearing during his interview with Barbara Walters was listed at $6,000 to $8,000. It sold for $120,000.

Woods divorce is a done deal

FINALLY SOMETHING THE TWO CAN AGREE ON! Tiger Woods' divorce from Elin Nordegren is pretty much a done deal, sources tell Radar Online.

"They've agreed on all the major points," a source says.

"It's all been worked out privately. Both Tiger and Elin are very close to finishing the negotiations and filing and signing the paperwork."

Nordegren and her lawyers reportedly negotiated an expected $750 million settlement.

"Elin had a lawyer in California who was very, very aggressive," a source says.
